We know that selling a home is more than just putting a sign in the yard—it's a significant life change. With a personalized, client-focused approach, my business partner and I work closely with you to prepare, market, and position your home for the best possible outcome. From staging and professional photography to strategic pricing and targeted marketing, we handle every detail so you can focus on your next chapter with confidence.

As local agents who know Glen Cove, Vallejo, and the surrounding communities inside and out, we understand what today's buyers want—and how to showcase your home's unique value. Our combined experience, strong negotiation skills, and commitment to clear communication ensure a smooth, stress-free selling process from start to finish. Together, we're here to help you move forward with ease and achieve the results you deserve.
