

FROM US TO YOU

One of the things we have loved most about this home is the way it offers such a rare balance. You are incredibly close to town, yet the moment you come up to the property, it feels peaceful, private, and removed from everything. There is a quietness here that is hard to describe until you experience it. In the mornings, you can wake up in the primary bedroom and see the alpenglow on the mountains from bed, which has been one of our favorite daily rituals.

The natural setting is truly special. When you pause and listen, you can hear the aspen leaves moving in the breeze and the birds all around you. As a family, we love seeing so much wildlife here, including deer, foxes and all kinds of birds. It has made the home feel connected to nature in a way that is both grounding and magical, especially for our kids. Even the simple routines, like driving the kids to school, feel memorable because of the way the mountains look each day.

Inside the home, the great room has always been one of our favorite spaces. The huge open windows make you feel as though you are living in a treehouse, surrounded by light, trees, and views. It is beautiful in every season, whether the leaves are changing, the snow is falling, or the mountains are glowing in the morning light.

We have also loved the way the home is designed for gathering. The kitchen has been such a wonderful place for cooking, hosting, and spending time with family and friends. Opening the pass-through window creates an effortless indoor and outdoor feeling, which has made entertaining feel relaxed and easy. Some of our favorite memories have been movie nights under the stars out on the deck, with everyone gathered outside.

The outdoor spaces have been a huge part of how we have enjoyed the property. In the winter, when it snows, there is nothing better than all of us getting into the hot tub together and taking in the stillness around us. In warmer months, the deck becomes an extension of the living space, a place to eat, host, watch movies, listen to the trees, and enjoy the feeling of being tucked into nature while still being so close to everything.

More than anything, this home has given us a sense of peace, connection, and perspective. It is the kind of place where everyday moments feel a little more special. Waking up to the mountains, hearing the aspens, watching wildlife pass through, gathering with friends, and feeling both at home and away from it all. We hope the next owners love that same feeling as much as we have.
